

SHEPPARD

Senior Database Developer/Analyst

Clifford Sheppard is a senior database developer and analyst at eGuard Technology Consulting in Washington, D.C. With more than 15 years of experience in developing robust database applications, Sheppard has successfully spear-headed multiple national based projects that required the integration of diverse team members utilizing pure web-based technologies. His efforts to understand a client's business process before engaging in the database development process enables eGuard Tech to implement a system that not only meets the critical functionalities of the project outline, but also enables the client to perform the functions in a more efficient and cost saving process.